Dear Friends,

Over the years, St. Jude has provided hope to so many children and families who are stricken with childhood cancer and other life-threatening diseases. And we are so thankful to you for being with us in our fight to save their lives. Your passion is so appreciated by our doctors and scientists who strive each day to end childhood cancer for good.

As you look through our St. Jude Giftbook, please remember that proceeds from every purchase help the children who are fighting for their lives. Treatments invented at St. Jude have helped push the overall childhood cancer survival rate from 20 percent to more than 80 percent since we opened more than 50 years ago. And we won't stop until no child dies from cancer. Your support will provide what every child deserves—the chance to live a long and healthy life.

Ari'Yanna & Ariyah

3 years old and 1 year old | sickle cell disease

Ari'Yanna became a patient at St. Jude shortly after she was born when tests revealed she had sickle cell disease. She takes penicillin and hydroxyurea daily and has monthly appointments. "I was scared when she was diagnosed," said her mom, D'Yana. "But St. Jude is wonderful. They help take the stress away." When Ari'Yanna's little sister, Ariyah, was born, she was also diagnosed with sickle cell disease. She's now a St. Jude patient, too, and Ari'Yanna helps guide her along during treatment. "Because of our experiences with Ari'Yanna, we knew what to expect with Ariyah. We knew she was at the best place," D'Yana said. Ari'Yanna is funny and outgoing and Ariyah is the shy one who loves to be held.

To learn more ways to help
kids like Dallas visit
stjude.org/giftsofdonation

Dallas has always been fascinated by the weather. When he grows up, he wants to be a meteorologist. At St. Jude, Dallas is undergoing treatment for familial adenomatous polyposis and Gardner syndrome, which are inherited disorders that cause tumors. His treatment at St. Jude has included surgeries to remove tumor growth and oral chemotherapy to keep the tumors stable. Dallas is a funny, outgoing kid. When his mom, Tekia, learned she'd never receive a bill from St. Jude, she said a burden was lifted. "We're free to worry about getting Dallas well," Tekia said. "I know because of St. Jude, we're going to be taken care of. For me, St. Jude is a manifestation of God's love in action."

Shortly after Za'Mya was born, when her family learned she had sickle cell disease, she became a patient at St. Jude. Sickle cell disease is a chronic illness that prevents the normal flow of blood in the body and causes serious complications. "In healthy people, blood cells are like donuts, they're round," explained Za'Mya's mom, Nytasha. "But when you have sickle cell disease, like Za'Mya, the cells are like crescent moons, and they can cause pain crises and other problems." Za'Mya's treatment includes penicillin and hydroxyurea. From St. Jude's first sickle cell disease research grant in 1958, to pioneering the use of hydroxyurea in pediatric sickle cell disease patients, St. Jude has been committed to researching, understanding and improving standards of care for this disease since our very beginning. Za'Mya loves her big brother and copies just about everything he does.

Madison came to St. Jude after she was found to have Hodgkin lymphoma at the age of 19. Chemotherapy helped her achieve remission. And the care we provided didn't stop there. Madison returned to St. Jude for physical therapy, occupational therapy and checkups. St. Jude has helped push the overall survival rate for childhood cancer from less than 20 percent when we first opened our doors to 80 percent today. Regular screenings help maintain the health of St. Jude survivors into adulthood and beyond. "St. Jude is more than a hospital," said Madison. "It's hope. It's a cure. It's a home." During her treatment, Madison bonded with the younger patients by sharing her love of art and crafts with them. Now, having beat cancer, she's working toward a career in design.
